"Great Weight" of Explosives Loosed On the City — Hanover Also Struck — Targets in Belgium Are Railway Centers—Nine Allied Aircraft Missing.

By Charles A. Smith

L. N. S. Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Mar. 27.—(INS)—The Nazi industrial center of Essen, home of the sprawling Krupp munitions works and many vital Nazi war industries, was blasted last night by giant fleets of RAF heavy bombers operating in "very great strength." The Air Ministry announced today.

Authoritative sources estimated that 2,800 tons of bombs were dropped by 800 or more bombers on the stricken city, last night on the night of July 25, 1943.

At the start Hanover and other objectives within the Reich and rail yards at Courtrai in Belgium were blasted as the Royal Air Force carried the Allied non-stop aerial campaign of devastation one step near fruition.

The first official identification of the target came in a brief Air Ministry communiqué which said merely:

"Last night aircraft of the bomber command were over Germany in very great strength. The main objective was Essen."

The city first leaped into the war's spotlight when it became the second city hit with more than

Hints for Reporting Are Given Four-H Groups

One of the speakers at the county-wide Four-H Club meeting in the Court House, at Doylestown, recently, was Edwin Rohrbach, publicity director of the agricultural extension service of State College, who gave the boys and girls information about reporting their club meetings for the newspapers.

Taking as his subject "Publicity reports and the Four-H club publicity in General," Mr. Rohrbach as it relates to our Four-H men stressed the importance of accuracy and brevity in reporting meetings. The most important news items, he said, should appear in the first paragraph. Mr. Rohrbach said six questions always should be answered, who, what, where, when, why and how.

When reporting a meeting, the boys and girls were told the importance of human interest should be given consideration. The members played work the previous year, were distributed among the members.

Local club members are fairly evenly divided in their choice of projects for the current year. Projects listed include pigs, poultry, dairy cattle and vegetables. A report of the baby chick project, already started, was given by members who have adopted this project. They listed the amount of feed consumed and the losses to date.

A short talk on vegetable gardens was given by Mr. Wilson, who said lime and manure can be used for the gardens, but he recommended the application of a 5-10-5 grade of fertilizer to be placed in the rows.

THE WAR AT A GLANCE

Spearheads of mighty Russian armies which reached the Romanian frontier in a powerful drive to the Prut River were believed to have forced the waterway at some points and crossed over to Romanian soil.

The stabs across the Prut, indicated in late dispatches from the front, marked the first thrust into territory of the enemy by the Red Army since Hitler and satellite troops invaded Russia in June, 1941.

The Soviets prepared to carry the fight to the enemy on his own soil after reaching the banks of the Prut River along a 53-mile expanse, panic-stricken German and Romanian forces fled headlong to the west bank of the Prut which separates Romania from the Moldavian Republic after Russian mechanized and infantry columns overran the Bessarabian rail junction and ousted the Germans from three vital district centers of Moldavia.

The ferocity of the Red Army onslaught was indicated in an official Soviet communiqué which declared

ROVING PIG LOSES ITS SHORT FREEDOM

"Porker" Makes Way From Taws Property, Andalusia, to Bristol Pike

DODGES THE TRAFFIC

ANDALUSIA, Mar. 27.—A large "porker," gaining its freedom yesterday morning, caused some excitement along Bristol Pike.

The pig was first seen crossing Bristol Pike, safely making its way against motor traffic. When it reached the Calvert property on Bristol Pike near the Boy Scout cabin, members of the Calvert family notified Penna. State Police at South Langhorne barracks.

It was shortly thereafter it was determined that the wandering pig belonged to E. T. Taws, of State Road and Station avenue.

So a truck was dispatched to the new playground of the pig, and even though the pig put up quite a battle it was soon on the Taws truck and given a half-mile ride home.

The pig is the last of a litter of three raised by the Taws.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS By FRANK R. KENT (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Foreign Policy Sags

Washington, Mar. 25. IT HAS been stated that soon Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Churchill and Mr. Stalin will meet for another conference. Whether or not this report is well founded, the necessity for a meeting seems clear. Because, a situation has developed which is disturbing to thoughtful men, regardless of their political affiliation.

PARTICULARLY, it disturbs those who believe most strongly that the welfare and safety of this country depend upon close co-operation and understanding with our Allies after the fighting ends. The point is made that the present absence of concord and understanding is distinctly unpromising for the post-war international co-operation to

PRICE HEARINGS WILL BE HELD AT DOYLESTOWN

Outstanding Price Violation in Doylestown Area is Reportedly on Butter

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 27.—The Price Panel and its assistants have completed the initial check of the retail food stores in the area covered by the Doylestown War Price and Rationing Board. A total of 89 outlets were visited.

The general consensus of opinion of those who did the checking seemed to be that the retailers welcomed the opportunity to get additional information on how to comply with the OPA regulations to the best of their ability. On the whole, they were courteous and willing to take time for the interview.

According to a report from Mrs. Peterson, price clerk, who has tabulated the results of the survey, most of the violations were in posting rather than price. Some storekeepers have been lax about putting up the price lists supplied them, some have them in places where the customer can't easily reach them.

The outstanding price violation is on butter. Group 1 and 2 consumers should charge no more than 40 cents a pound for butter. Retail stores selling butter under the same classification as the State's consumers should all the seller's attention to a higher than ceiling price.

Garson and Pidgeon Are Reunited in 'Madame Curie'

One of the most important and significant productions ever to be filmed in Hollywood is now showing at the Grand Theatre. This outstanding film unites the team of Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon for the third time in the historic and fascinating story of the discovery of radium in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Madame Curie."

The film, based on Eve Curie's best-selling biography of her famous mother, begins with Marie's student days at Paris and tells of her courtship and subsequent marriage to the brilliant young physicist, Pierre Curie. While working in Pierre's laboratory a fellow scientist shows them a remarkable phenomenon which cannot be explained. The mysterious substance fascinates Marie and she determines to isolate it. Soon Pierre realizes the magnitude of her work and joins her. The University refuses them aid but the Curies are not to be deterred.

Working against the elements, sickness and despair, they persevere in their endeavors. Their labors finally are rewarded with the discovery of a new element, radium, the great healer which they make available to mankind at no profit to themselves.

But just when their happiness is supreme a tragic street accident ends the life of Pierre Curie. Marie, heartbroken and grief-stricken, resolves to carry on alone.

Green Garson has never given a finer performance than in her portrayal of the greatest woman scientist of our times, and Walter Pidgeon does an excellent job of emulating the lovable absent-minded professor. As Pierre's sympathetic parents, Dame May Whitty and Henry Travers are human and endurable. Albert Basserman contributes an outstanding performance as the distinguished scientist who brings the Curies together and becomes Marie's bulwark in later years.

OIL BEAR STORIES

The American people will go a long way with the administration in the circulation of oil scare stories to fool the Axis powers, but when it plasters the country with these stories as effusions of fact which the people are expected to believe, the people are bound to look at the record.

When Secretary Ickes said recently that this country has only a 14-year supply of oil in sight, and that it "could not oil another war," it was recalled that in 1908 the United States Geological Survey solemnly warned the country that its reserve of oil was not more than 24,000,000,000 barrels. By 1927, the United States had produced more than the 1908 estimate and had more than 24,000,000,000 barrels in sight. But the experts kept on seeing the end until 1929, when the East Texas field was tapped and became the greatest oil field in the world.

It is conceded that as time passes the possibility of bringing in new fields diminishes, but it is also true that as the supply dwindles the price rises and this brings other sources of synthetic liquid fuels into the field of profitable production. Oil shale and coal could be used as the source of more motor fuel than is now derived from petroleum.

Another reason why Americans do not scare easily when Secretary Ickes and other harbingers of disaster expatiate on the perils of an oil shortage is their confidence in their ability to find other primary sources of heat and power if their inventive genius is not smothered by state socialism and bureaucratic inertia.

They look forward to the day when they can blast the New Deal road blocks out of their way and go ahead to the limits of their native ability.

WHEAT PROSPECTS BRIGHTER

An encouraging development in the battle for food is the improvement of winter wheat prospects in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. Recent snows in the area are mainly responsible. There was some additional planting in western Kansas and the Texas panhandle from January to March and this crop now has a chance to come through, though shallow frosts make it subject to damage from high winds.

But it is from the 12,500,000 acres of wheat planted last fall in Kansas that most is expected. This was a million and a half acres under the acreage that the government recommended, but is capable of producing a bumper crop under favorable growing conditions.

Dry conditions of last fall can not be wholly made good, but a crop of 150,000,000 bushels is possible. There has been little if any winter killing. The main hazards now are high winds and later in the season, insects.

There is considerable talk of possible cereal shortages and even bread rationing is mentioned as a remote possibility. But it is encouraging to learn that the Kansas wheat crop may be 50 per cent larger than the 100,000,000 bushel total estimated by the Department of Agriculture on January 1.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol November 2, 1882. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

Harvey Bailey, who lives with Jared Hellings, met with a curious accident last Monday night. The cellar door near the entrance of Cabeca's Hall was thoughtlessly left open, and Mr. Bailey, who was on his way to attend a meeting in the hall, fell down the cellar steps, breaking a bone of one of his legs near the ankle, and cutting a long deep gash in his head, which penetrated to the skull. He was picked up and Dr. Groom was summoned.

On Monday the jury awarded to Henry J. Shoemaker, of Tullytown, $800 for about 1 1/2 acres of land in that village, taken by the Pennsylvania Railroad for their additional tracks.

G. G. Rose, of Newportville, the carriage maker, has furnished one of the handsomest extension top Phaetons that we have ever seen. It is of the latest pattern.

The division of Sons of Temperance recently organized in Bristol have rented the lodge room over Cabeca's hall, and meet every Tuesday evening.

Mr. K. Sykes, bridge contractor of Philadelphia, was killed at Yardleyville on the afternoon of October 27th by a tree falling upon him.

The street committee have ordered two more boat loads of broken limestone to be put on Pond street.

Following items culled from Bucks County Gazette, issue of November 2, 1882:

William E. Laing has purchased the residence on the corner of Radcliffe and Lafayette streets, belonging to James Martin's estate for $3,300.

The county commissioners have concluded to build a new iron bridge on the pier of the bridge.

Some knew of the gallantry he displayed in the late war. He was a color-bearer in Colonel E. B. Baker's California regiment and at Baker's Bluff, during a desperate charge, Colonel Baker was shot. Notwithstanding the bullets fell like hail, Vansant bravely bore his wounded commander from the field, and then returned to rescue the flag. Five times it was captured by the Rebels and restored by Vansant in a hand-to-hand struggle. At last he broke away with the flag and reached the Potomac. His foes were at his heels, but he plunged into the river, dived to the bottom, hurried the flag to six feet of water, and then swam to the other shore and escaped. Afterward he revisited the spot and succeeded in finding and restoring to the regiment the flag he had so desperately defended.

KNOW YOUR STATE

When the names of the nearly 1000 townships of Pennsylvania are placed in alphabetical order some curious, but interesting facts are revealed. Nearly half of them are duplicated one or more times in any other county or counties. This does not cause confusion to the residents, however, since their post office addresses generally are those of a community within the township.

Twenty-two townships in Pennsylvania have the name of Washington. The second most popular name is Union which appears 19 times. In addition, Union appears four times preceded by North, East or South. Other names familiar in the history of our country are popular with Franklin and Jackson each appearing in 18 instances. There are also North, East, South and West Franklin Townships. The name of Penn is used 14 times, Jefferson 10, and Wayne, Springfield and Perry each by nine communities.

Points of the compass, North, East, South and West are frequently used as part of a township name. This usually happened when a large township was divided but retained the same name for both sections, preceded by North, East, South or West, depending upon location. In these instances the word West is used 75 times, East 32, North 29 and South 26. For the same reason as the points of the compass, Upper and Lower are frequently used. Upper appears in 37 township names and Lower in 32. Letters of the alphabet used most frequently to begin township names are S and W, each of which were used 148 times. These are followed by T which was used on 128 occasions. The only letter not used to begin a township name is X. "X" is used but once for Zerbe Township in Northumberland County. "Q" twice for the townships of Quenabonnet and Quincy in Somerset and Franklin Counties respectively, and "Y" three times for York in York County and Young in the counties of Indiana and Jefferson.

Price Hearings Will
Be Held at Doylestown

Follow-up work on the restaurant check also. The chairman, Mrs. Child, reports that the first of the hearings for those restaurant proprietors whose violations are serious are scheduled for today. Letters have been sent to those whose prices are only slightly changed, and a re-check will be made in all cases to see that the warnings are being heeded.

The Panel suggests that those who patronize public eating establishments look for the statement which declares prices to be ceiling prices, and if they think they are paying more for the same meal than formerly ask for a menu or price list for the week of April 4 to 10, 1943. That is the week during which ceiling prices were established. The public can be of great assistance to the Price Panel by checking on ceiling prices when they purchase any of the many commodities under price control.

Nazi Industrial Center of Essen Blasted by Bombers

1,000 planes on June 2, 1941. At that time a total of 1,636 craft roared over it. Not all of these, however, were bombers—and all of the bombers participating were not four-motored heavyweights, such as have been ruining Germany's key bastions in recent months.

Subsequently the Air Ministry disclosed that in last night's assault, a "great weight" of explosives was loosed upon the city, although low-hanging clouds made it impossible to estimate the damage wrought by the explosive and fire packets.

Among the other targets hit was Hanover, while additional RAF squadrons flying over Belgium struck at railway objectives in Courtrai.

"Many mines were laid in enemy waters," the communique said, adding:

"Nine aircraft are missing."

At one point in the war Essen enjoyed the dubious distinction of being ranked as the most bombed city in the world, with thousands of its inhabitants homeless as a result of the continued punishment. Just a year ago the city was placed under martial law; its locomotive shops were bombed out, 34 buildings of the Krupp plant damaged; industrial factories gutted and its whole food distribution system tied up.

That Essen again caught it heavily was testified to by unofficial sources.

general of the U. S. Army Eighth Air Force.

The award was made at appropriate ceremonies in the Officers' Club at an aerial reconnaissance station "for meritorious achievement in accomplishing with distinction five photographic reconnaissance missions over enemy-occupied territory. The courage, coolness and skill displayed by Lieutenant Hawes reflect great credit upon himself and the armed forces of the United States."

As a pilot for a photographic squadron, he flies alone through enemy-infested skies in his fast, unarmed "Lightning" or "Spitfire" to obtain important pictures of Nazi military, maritime and industrial installations. He and fellow photo pilots are the Mafia Haris who probe Hitler's most zealously guarded secrets. The photographic records made by these "focus cats" provide 75 per cent of all the Allies know about the enemy in the European operations.

Lieutenant Hawes is a son of Mrs. Florence Hawes, 157 West Oakland avenue, Doylestown. Before entering the Army Sept. 27, 1940, he was a captain of a fishing boat. He was graduated from Doylestown High School in 1940, and is a member of the Pennsylvania Fish & Game Club.

After being appointed a flight officer he was commissioned a second lieutenant Sept. 1st, 1943, and three months later, January, 1944, was promoted to his present rank.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Keen celebrated their golden wedding on Tuesday, March 21, with a family dinner at their home, 314 Washington avenue, Newtown. Mrs. Keen was the daughter of Nelson and Ella Sutphin, of this place, and Mr. Keen, the son of George and Rosa Keen, Davisville.

They were married at Mrs. Keen's home by the Rev. T. J. Elms, of this place. They have always lived in Newtown since their marriage.

Guests at the dinner included their daughter, Miss Dorothy Keen, at home, and Curtis Settle, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Robinson and Mrs. Maud DeCoursey and son, Jack.

"The War at A Glance"

that "numerous enemy groups that failed to cross the river in time were exterminated."

To the northwest near the border of the Ukraine and in southeast Poland the Nazi garrisons at Kamensk-Podolsk and at Tarnopol were in dire straits, the troops of the first Ukrainian front had both enemy bastions surrounded and were driving through the streets of the city to annihilate those portions of the enemy still resisting.

Pierce tank and infantry battles in the Tarnopol and Kamensk-Podolsk region resulted in death for some 10,000 Germans.

Nazi difficulties were multiplied in the south. The Nazi-dominated Vichy radio said Nazi troops in the area of the Black Sea port of Nikolayev were falling back on Odessa ahead of rearguard units seeking to stem the westward push of the Russians on this front.

In London, Prime Minister Churchill's Sunday address was hailed as a challenge to the British, and the whole allied world to concentrate all efforts on winning the war as soon as possible. Churchill's warning to the British that the hour of their greatest military effort is approaching, led diplomatic Washington to believe the next 60 to 90 days will mark one of the most momentous periods of the entire war.

Bayonet clashes and small arm duels marked the fighting on the Cassino battlefield in Italy. In the comparative lull which has settled over the war-torn city 82 miles below Rome both sides appeared to be mustering their strength for resumption of large-scale battling.

The heaviest fighting in the area continued between the Allies and the Germans for possession of key mountain slopes which provide dominating positions.

In the Anzio beachhead area German artillery was active against allied troop positions and shipping off the coast. German infantry stabs in the vicinity of Cisterna were subdued.

Desperate Jap forces trapped on the Solomons island of Bougainville made another suicidal onslaught against American forces and suffered casualties at a ratio of 75 to one. Several thousand Japs participated in close-quarter fighting but were forced to withdraw after losing 300 dead. American casualties were placed at four killed.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur also reported that fresh units of dismounted Texas cavalrymen had taken two more islands in the Admiralty group.

Allied jungle troops battled furiously against Jap forces which penetrated into India from Burma. The allies were intent on blunting the Nipponese spearheads probing into Manipur province and turning the Japs back into Burma.

ADD ALL this up and it bears no resemblance to the "complete understanding" which seemed to be the happy outcome of Moscow and Teheran. It is not, praise be, affecting the conduct of the war, but it darkens somewhat the peace-making and post-war periods. So clear is this that from various quarters recently critical attacks have been made on our foreign policy or rather the lack of it. Mr. Walter Lippmann asserts that our foreign policy is "not sufficiently alert, lucid, consistent and efficient."

There is ample evidence to support this charge and it is hard to see how harm can come from airing those widely known facts. On the contrary, good may result. But there is no use, as the left wingers are trying to do, blaming things on Mr. Hull.

NEITHER Mr. Hull's recent 17-point statement nor his forthcoming radio talk will do that. They will make more generally understood the basic points of our policy and our attitude toward certain specific situations. But the atmosphere can really be cleared only by the President. He can, if he chooses, put an end to the things that make for friction and misunderstanding between ourselves and our Allies by a few firm decisions. The diffi-

THE responsibility lies squarely on the President. It is he who makes our foreign policy, and neither this State Department nor a reorganized one will change that situation so long as he remains in the White House. The real reason our policy is weak, vacillating and muddled is because this is an election year and Mr. Roosevelt is a candidate for re-election. That is the big handicap. It handicaps him in framing foreign policy and it handicaps him in domestic matters too. It enfeebles his resolution and it beclouds his judgment. It is a great pity, but apparently "nothing can be done about it. But another Stalin-Churchill-Roosevelt conference might clear up a few of what seem totally unnecessary misunderstandings.

credit upon himself and the armed forces of the United States."

As a pilot for a photographic squadron, he flies alone through enemy-infested skies in his fast, unarmed "Lightning" or "Spitfire" to obtain important pictures of Nazi military, maritime and industrial installations. He and fellow photo pilots are the Mafia Haris who probe Hitler's most zealously guarded secrets. The photographic records made by these "focus cats" provide 75 per cent of all the Allies know about the enemy in the European operations.

Lieutenant Hawes is a son of Mrs. Florence Hawes, 157 West Oakland avenue, Doylestown. Before entering the Army Sept. 27, 1940, he was a captain of a fishing boat. He was graduated from Doylestown High School in 1940, and is a member of the Pennsylvania Fish & Game Club.

After being appointed a flight officer he was commissioned a second lieutenant Sept. 1st, 1943, and three months later, January, 1944, was promoted to his present rank.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Keen celebrated their golden wedding on Tuesday, March 21, with a family dinner at their home, 314 Washington avenue, Newtown. Mrs. Keen was the daughter of Nelson and Ella Sutphin, of this place, and Mr. Keen, the son of George and Rosa Keen, Davisville.

They were married at Mrs. Keen's home by the Rev. T. J. Elms, of this place. They have always lived in Newtown since their marriage.

Guests at the dinner included their daughter, Miss Dorothy Keen, at home, and Curtis Settle, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Robinson and Mrs. Maud DeCoursey and son, Jack.

ADD ALL this up and it bears no resemblance to the "complete understanding" which seemed to be the happy outcome of Moscow and Teheran. It is not, praise be, affecting the conduct of the war, but it darkens somewhat the peace-making and post-war periods. So clear is this that from various quarters recently critical attacks have been made on our foreign policy or rather the lack of it. Mr. Walter Lippmann asserts that our foreign policy is "not sufficiently alert, lucid, consistent and efficient."

There is ample evidence to support this charge and it is hard to see how harm can come from airing those widely known facts. On the contrary, good may result. But there is no use, as the left wingers are trying to do, blaming things on Mr. Hull.

NEITHER Mr. Hull's recent 17-point statement nor his forthcoming radio talk will do that. They will make more generally understood the basic points of our policy and our attitude toward certain specific situations. But the atmosphere can really be cleared only by the President. He can, if he chooses, put an end to the things that make for friction and misunderstanding between ourselves and our Allies by a few firm decisions. The diffi-

THE responsibility lies squarely on the President. It is he who makes our foreign policy, and neither this State Department nor a reorganized one will change that situation so long as he remains in the White House. The real reason our policy is weak, vacillating and muddled is because this is an election year and Mr. Roosevelt is a candidate for re-election. That is the big handicap. It handicaps him in framing foreign policy and it handicaps him in domestic matters too. It enfeebles his resolution and it beclouds his judgment. It is a great pity, but apparently "nothing can be done about it. But another Stalin-Churchill-Roosevelt conference might clear up a few of what seem totally unnecessary misunderstandings.
